BIOGRAPHY

Ben Tiggelaar MA is an independent researcher, writer and trainer. His goal: helping people to turn their dreams into action. His approach is based on passion, fun and the practical application of behavioural science.

Since 2000, three books by Tiggelaar reached the number one position in the Dutch management books top 10. Tiggelaars' latest book is Dream, Dare, Do and is about effective self-management. Over 150,000 copies were sold in the Netherlands. The English translation was recently published, as well as an Arabic and German translation. His previous book is Can Do! It contains new and practical insights about change and growth. Can do! has been translated into English and Japanese and is a worldwide bestseller. Tiggelaar studied communication sciences in Amsterdam and is currently conducting postdoctoral research in the field of behaviour-centred change management in organisations. Several theories from his books will be further explored in his thesis. International companies that have hired Ben include PWC, Pfizer, Honeywell, Shell, TNT, Deloitte, PWC, Accenture, Sanoma, Philips, Deutsche Telecom, Kone, Vacation Network Group, Computer Associates, Novartis, SHV, KPN, Volker Wessels, SAP, KPMG and many more. Ben's approach is creative, dynamic, and thought-provoking while at the same time being practical and accessible. Deeply rooted in scientific research, Ben's presentations are guaranteed to engage his audience. Combining theory and practice in a practical and professional way, Ben truly has the power and ability to inspire people.
