Maayke-Aimée Damen: A Beacon of Sustainability and Circular Economy

Maayke-Aimée Damen has always been inspired by the natural world, drawing parallels between nature's cyclical processes and the potential for our economic systems to operate similarly. Her deep passion for sustainability, combined with a sharp intellect and a strong will, has positioned her as a formidable force in the drive towards a more sustainable and circular economy.

The Journey to Excess Materials Exchange

One of Maayke's most significant contributions to the circular economy is the founding of the Excess Materials Exchange (EME), a revolutionary marketplace that connects companies looking to buy and sell excess materials and products. The platform is more than a marketplace; it's a visionary attempt to minimise waste by creating a dynamic space where materials find their highest value potential, promoting a continuous loop of use and reuse. Through EME, Maayke has not only demonstrated the practical applications of circular economy principles but has also garnered international acclaim, receiving prestigious accolades such as the MIT Innovator under 35 and the EU Impulse Giver 2022.

Shaping Policies and Leading by Example

Beyond her entrepreneurial ventures, Maayke-Aimée Damen has been instrumental in developing and advocating for policies that support sustainable practices. The Resources Passport, a concept she pioneered, has been integrated into Dutch and European policy frameworks, serving as a tool for mapping the material metabolism of economies. This initiative underscores her ability to translate innovative ideas into actionable policies that drive change.

A Voice for the Circular Economy

As a sought-after speaker, Maayke's influence extends to global platforms where she shares her insights and experiences with a broader audience. Her ability to articulate the importance of a circular economy, coupled with her enthusiasm and authority on the subject, makes her a powerful advocate for change. Through her speaking engagements, including TEDx talks, Maayke continues to inspire and mobilise action towards a more sustainable future.

Vision for a Regenerative Future

Currently, as the Executive Director of The Pioneers of our Time Foundation, Maayke is focusing on creating a regenerative operating system for humanity. This bold initiative aims to foster thriving societies and resilient landscapes, demonstrating her commitment to pushing the boundaries of sustainability and circularity. Maayke-Aimée Damen's work goes beyond immediate environmental benefits. By holding advisory and thought leadership roles in various organisations, including the United Nations and the Port of Amsterdam, she is shaping the discourse around sustainability and mentoring the next generation of leaders in the field. Her efforts are a testament to her belief in the power of collective action and innovation to address some of the most pressing challenges of our time.
